OBITUARY.

PLETCHER HARPER.

Mr. Fletcher Harper, senior member of the firm of Tarper Brothers, publishers, died yesterday morning at his residence, No. 14 West Twenty-second street. fr. Harper's death had been anticipated for some lays. For a week or two past he had been afflicted with gastric fever. The fever was brought on by a old. His physicians say he had partaken of no food or ten days previous to his death. His vitality was to strong, however, that at one time it was thought he night recover. On Sunday night he grew much weaker, and on Monday at noon life was fast ebbing away. He was unconscious for ten nours before his death, with the exception of a short time on Monday. when he recognized members of his family who were at his bedside. Then his extremities grew cold, his pulse was scarcely perceptible, and in this condition he passed away. The Harper Building was closed yesterday and crape was on the door. The funeral services take place to-morrow morning, at ten o'clock, at 8t. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, in Fourth avenue, corner of Twenty-second street.

Mr. Fletcher Harper was the youngest of the four brothers who founded and brought to great and deserved eminence the publishing house of Harper & Brothers, and was the last survivor of the four James, the oldest of the four, was born in 1795; John in 1797, Wesley in 1801 and Fletcher in 1806. Their lather was a substantial Long Island farmer, a pious member of the Mothodist Church, of which all the sons were also members. The two oldest sons, James and John, were apprenticed by their father to the printing business in New York, and when they had served out their time and were of set up in business for themselves, at first as printers for booksellers. They began in the second story of a small house which then stood on the corner of Front and Dover streets, and the style of the firm was J. & J. Harper, and their earliest printed books bear date 1818. They worked hard, and James Harper was a noted pressman in his day, being a man of great Wesley Harper was apprenticed to his brothers after they had set up in business, and some years later Fletcher also became an apprentice. When he two younger brothers had "worked out thou they purchased a share in the busi-Wesley in 1823, and Fletcher in 1826. Thereupon the firm became Harper & Brothers.

time" they purchased a share in the business, Wesley in 1823, and Fletcher in 1824. Thereupon the firm became Harper & Brethers. For some years, and while the business was growing, Wesley, who had a cultivated literary taste and wrote all his life remarkably pure and vigorous English, was the proof-realer of the firm and Fletcher was foreman of the composing room; and tradition relates that he was a very energetic and driving foreman. When it was once necessary to push a work rapidly through the press Fletcher did not leave the composing room for several days and nights; an extra tore was put on, and the foreman, whose duty it was to impose the matter. Bad his meals brought to him and slept under the "stone" on a rug. The adventure was one he was never ashamed of, for he was always proud of having beel in his time one of the ablest printers in New York.

The lour brothers worked together all their lives with singular unanimity. They adopted a rule early in life never teenter on any enterprise unless all four were agreed to it, and to this they adopted a rule early in life never teenter on any enterprise unless all four were agreed to it, and to this they adopted a rule early in life never teenter on any enterprise unless all four were agreed to it, and to this they adopted their salety in many instances as business men. It is a tradition of the bousthat, all being strong men, of positive characters, Fletcher, being the youngeat, had at first less influence than atterward fell to his share. He was thought venturesome, and the conservative spirit of the elders opposed sometimes what seemed to them rash suggestions and propositions. But his powers seem made themselves fell. He saw rapidly what the public taste demanded, and he always knew how to puen work. It is related that the establishment of Harper's Magazine was due to him. For a while, tradition reports, the other brothers were to the enterprise. They were wealthy, were making money rapidly, and were opposed to venituring in anew held, where they mind he for to be considered by the firm for a new building. Of course, the business was temporarily carried on in another place. The new building, it was determined, thould be fireproof, as it is.

Fietcher Harper was for many years the most active of the four brothers. He bore toe heaviest burdens, and bore them easily. He posessed a cheerful and bouyant temper, uniating courage, and was always an asmirable administrator. It was his thought which, in 1856, established Harpers' Weekly, and in 1867, the Bazar, both which he made eminently successful. Though he had, of course, proper assistants, and trained one of his sons and one of his nephews in this department, he was for many years the active and called editor of these publications, and especially of the Magazine. Though he made no pretensions to especial or high literary culture, he had a remarkable gift of judgment in regard to the popularity of both books and articles. His opinion in such matters was almost unfallingly correct; and during many years he read in manuscript the greater part of the contents of the Magazine and suggested topics for both the Magazine and the Weekly. He always, with characteristic modesty, asserted himself to be without the qualifications necessary to enable him to judge of the literary merits of a book or an article, but his tasie and judgment and the quick tact with which he saw what would take with the public were unerring.

In fact, the qualities which he developed in his business were as, if he had been trained to public life, would have made him one of the foremest men in the country. He had in washing and affection at a liling and the public were such as, if he had been trained to public life, would have made him one of the foremest men in the country. He had in washing an affection at a liling to make the public were such as, if he had been trained to pretent and the work of the washing and affection at t

WILLIAM S. DUNHAM.

William S. Dunham died yesterday morning at his residence in Livingston street, Brooklyn, from a suddep attack of beart disease. The deceased was born in this city in 1803, and was widely and favorably in this city in 1895, and was widely and favorably known in business circles. In early years he was connected with the New York Post Office, and in 1849 entered upon the life insurance business, which he followed successfully. At the time of his death he was the general agent of the Connecticut Mutual Company, his term of life enly exceeding that of his partner in management, Mr. George Sherman, by about four weel s. Mr. Dunbain was entirely devoted to business pursuits, and was generally loved by his associates for his gentle yet pontitive and manly nature. He was a prominent member of Dr. Storrs' church in Brooklyn.

of Henry Weekes, R. A., the well known English sculptor. He was born at Canterbury in 1807, and in early life became a pupil of Mr.

W. Betines and studied under Chantrey, to whose studie in Pimlico he succeeded. When a young he was a constant exhibitor at the Reyal wells and Samuel Welsh. A cable despatch from London announces the death Academy, and completed the first bust of Queen Victoria, which was taken after her coronation. He executed the statues of Graemer, Latimer and Bailey for the "Martyra" Memorial" at Oxford; of Dr. Goodsh, at Eton; of the Marquis of Weilesley, for the India House; of Lord Bacon, for Trinsity College, Cambridge, and many others. He executed one of the groups for the Albert Memorial and a statue of Charles II. for the House of Lords. He exhibited "The Suppliant" in 1850, "A Shepherd" in 1852, and the same year obtained the gold medal offered by the Society of Arts for the best treatise on the fine art section of the great exhibition. He was elected A. R. A. in 1860 and R. A. M. in 1863.

FUNERAL OF AN ACTRESS.

The luneral of Miss Winetta Montague, the actress, ook place yesterday afternoon from the residence of her brother-in-law, Dr. George Smith, No. 140 Law-rence street, Brooklyn. There were but few persons of floral offerings was noticeable. The remains lay in a plain mahogany coffin, and the features bore the impress of much physical sufforing. The funeral services of the Catholic Church were conducted by the Rev. Father O'Hara, of St. James' Church. The body was interred in Evergroons Cemetery.

WANT THEIR MONEY.

DEPOSITORS OF THE TRADE SAVINGS BANK RESTIVE UNDER THE RECEIVER'S STRANGE

DELAY. About a score of depositors in the defunct Trad Savings Bank met at the law office of Henry M. Heymann, No. 275 West Twenty-third street, last night, to adopt measures which will compel the receiver, Mr. S. B. White-who is also President of the Grocers' Bank-to make some statement concerning the affairs of the bankrupt institution. Some of those present were heavy depositors, and Mr. Heymann, esides being personally interested, represented others to the extent of $30,000. Mr. J. Counteld occupied the chair and stated the object of the meeting. It appeared that when the bank went into liquidation in August last there was $70,000 standing against it on the books of depositors. From the statements made by the speakers last night it would seem that two of the trustoes, Dexter A. Hawkins and I. M. Freeze, used their influence to have Mr. White appointed receiver, and that since that gentleman has ecupied the position he has steadily declined to furnish any statement to depositors who have called upon him as to their chances of a dividend, and that ur Barking is at the same time attorney for the bank Mr. Hawkins is at the same time attorney for the bank and for the receiver. The general opinion of the depositors seemed to be that if the assets should not prove sufficient to satisfy their claims they could hold responsible for the deficiency the trustees whose names appeared upon the bank books, and among whom were flexter A. Hawkins, S. B. H. Vance, John Baboock, Alexander M. Lesley, George F. Bonney, I. M. Freese and Isaac Freese. Mr. Dudley Jardine stated that Mr. Hawkins informed him a short time ago that $4,000 had been "appropriated" by the officers of the bank, and that they should be indicted for it. Mr. Hawkins also stated to him that the gross deposits in the institution at the time of its failure were $77,000, and that the assets nominally amounted to $65,000, of which $54,000 was in moregages—some of them second. In reply to a letter asking for information, from Alexander M. Lesley, one of the trustees, Mr. Jardine received a printed price list of his mercantile wares and an invitation to buy. It was alleged last uight that Mr. White had sought and obtained the position of receiver in order to recover for the Grocers' Bank of which he is president, a considerable sum overdrawn by the Trade Savings Bank, which was a depositor with that institution.

After considerable discussion, a subscription was started among those present to defray immediate expenses, and a committee of four large depositors was appointed to call upon the receiver and demand a statement of his affairs. In the ovent of his relusal the committee will obtain the names of all depositors and furnish them to the chairman, who will thereupon mittee and employ counsel to press their demands.

EXCURSION BOAT LAUNCHED.

The new steamboat Columbia, built expressly for the Rockaway route, was successfully launched yesterday morning from the shippard of John Englis & Son, at Greenpoint. About one thousand invitations had been ssued, and at ten o'clock the steamboat Neversink left Jewell's dock, at the foot of Fulton street, Brooklyn for the scene, carrying a large party of gentlemen and ladies. A brass band stationed on the upper deck played a number of airs before and after starting. while in sailing up the river a number of salutes were fired from the bow of the vessel, causing considerabl alarm to the young ladies on the upper deck, who, at the first report, were confident that the boiler had ex-ploded. The trip to Greenpoint was made in about Ofteen minutes.

The time originally approunced for the lunch was ten o'clock, but as it was desired to take the water at it highest, and as the tide is proverbially independent of human control the hour was afterward changed to leven o'clock. As the time approached the crowd in the vard increased in number and drew closer abou the vessel; the steamboats Neversick and Americus drow near the shore; a number of tugs gathered around and nearly a score of rowboats congregated about the bows of the vessel. The work of removing supports was promptly begun, and proceeded without delay or mishap. At four minutes past eleven the word delay or mishap. At four minutes past eleven the word was given, the last prop was knocked from under the boot, and the crowd in the yard fell bastily back out of danger's way. Miss Emma Thursby, the distinguished prima donna, then stepped to the front, and as the vessel glided swiftly into the water, broke a bottle of wine over its maiden bow and christened it Columbia. The band on the Neversiok broke out with the patriotic and appropriate air "Hail, Columbia," while the rowboats, scurrying in all directions, the puffing of the tigs, the blowing of steam unistles, the futtiering of flags and pennants in the breeze, the clapping of hands and the excited cheers of thousands of speciators united to make the scene equally brilliant and impressive. The launch was in every respect a perfect success. The Columbia will be ready for use July 1, and will make daily trips to Rockaway. The vessel belongs to R. Cornell White, and will undoubtedly be one of the finest excursion boats in the country.

THE KEROSENE TRAGEDY.

Franz Scharnagel, indicted for the murder of Joseph Stabl, by burning him with kerosene, at Kohler & Kamena's brewery, in Guttenberg, was arraigned in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, at Jersey City, yes-terday. The indictment was translated into German, and the prisoner pleaded not guilty and remarked that the sconer he would be tried the better. The case was set down for the 25th of June.

A DARING ROBBERY.

A bold robbery was perpetrated in Jersey City yeserday morning, about one o'clock, at the dry goods store of T. C. Brown, near the City Hall, on Newark avenue. The thieves wrenched the grating in front of the large show window, broke a hole through the heavy French plate glass and carried off two large pieces of silk. All this occurred in a thoroughlare more frequented than any other in the city, and less than a stone's throw from Police Headquarters. This is the fourth time Mr. Brown's store has been robbed.

OVERCOME BY THE HEAT.

An unknown woman was found at the corner of Broadway and Forty-third street overcome by the heat. She was about fifty-five years old, had gray hair and wore a black dress. She was sent to the Ninety-ninth Street Hospital.

SATISFYING A GRUDGE.

Patrick Meighan, of Williamsburg, was terribly clubbed last night on the corner of Grand and Fifth streets by Officer Dickerman, of the Fifth precinct The men, who held an old grudge toward each other, had an aftercation, when the officer, who was on duty at the time, struck Meighan with his club. on daty at the time, struck Meighan with his club. The latter then attempted to take the club away, but was so terribly beaten that he now lies in the station house in a very critical condition, being too much injured to be moved. The officer bears a good reputation and it is considered strange, that he should have acted as he did. He preferred a charge of disorderly conduct against Meighan on reaching the station house and then resumed his duty as a patroiman.

DISEASES OF SWINE.

IMMENSE DEATH BATE AMONG THE ANIMALS THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY.

WASHINGTON, May 29, 1877. Mr. Dodge, the statistician of the Department of Agriculture, reports as the result of an investigation of the losses from diseases of swine during the past twelve months the destruction of 4,000,000 animals twelve months the destruction of 4,000,000 animals of all ages, and a money loss of more than $20,000,000. One-fifth of the reported loss occurs in the State of Illinois; next in prominence are Missouri, Iowa and Indiana, which together lose $10,000,000. Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana have nearly as large a percentage of loss in numbers, aggregating in value $1,000,000. The reported losses are very small in New England, the country bordering on the great lakes and the Pacific coast. Of the remaining districts West Virginia comes nearest exemption, and this and the Atlantic coast States stand better than the alluval districts. The apparent loss is equivalent to a third of the sum of exports of pork products last year. It is somewhat greater than usual, eliciting demands from correspondents for a competent scientific investigation by the government.
